

Do You Love To Write?

Did you ever write something, and it went really well? Did you find yourself creating ideas or images you'd never imagined? Does your writing take you to a different world? A zone of creating that you can't quite explain?

Maybe you're a writer, or could be, or would like to be, or just curious. Come meet other writers, write and read, think create, help and hear each other out. It's a unique person who'd enjoy this. Maybe you? Come find out.

www.freeplays.org and the First Street Playhouse in Batavia are proud to sponsor

Friday Night Write

Come join us on 2nd and 4th Fridays from March through May 2007 at the First Street Playhouse. Drop in any time from 6:30 PM to 8:00 PM; stay as late as 1:00 PM. We'll be writing scripts for little kids, for their summer workshop called "Around the World in 7 Plays". Writers are also free to write anything else they want. Stories, poetry, anything.

Hear your lines read and your thoughts spoken. Get excited or relax, ponder, get "in the zone", help other writers, get helped. Help us write scripts for little kids; publish your scripts on www.FreePlays.org (both optional). Add an attractive item to your college application. Or begin your career as a famous playwright. Or just do it on a lark. As long as it's writing, come do it with us.

Friday Night Write is especially for persons 18 and under. Want more information? Call the First Street Playhouse at 406-6367, drop in (it's at the corner of First & Water Streets in Batavia), call Leo Heska at 482-9166, e-mail leo@pevex.com or julane@firststreetplayhouse.com, or go to <http://www.freeplays.org/FridayNightWrite>.
